Paige is the senior associate at Evans Harrison Hackett. Paige is licensed in Tennessee and Georgia, with a license pending in Alabama. Paige's practice focuses on family law, juvenile proceedings, contract litigation, property and zoning matters, employment law, civil rights, and tort claims.

After working as a Guardian ad Litem volunteer during her undergraduate years, Paige discovered a passion for the law and for serving others. In law school, Paige represented battered persons while working for the University of Georgia's Jane W. Wilson Family Justice Clinic. She also spent time interning with Guardian ad Litem Attorneys in the juvenile court system. After her first year of law school, Paige worked as a summer clerk for the Honorable William T. Moore, U.S. District Court Judge for the Southern District of Georgia, in 2020. She also enjoyed working on the executive board of the Family Law Society and being a member of the Christian Legal Society. Paige spent her final semester of law school working for the City Attorney for the City of Chattanooga. In this position, Paige gained an additional interest in municipal law. Her time at the City Attorney's office educated her in the sectors of employment/labor law, civil rights, governmental torts, environmental/water law, zoning, land use, and contract negotiation. She looks forward to engaging in pro bono work to benefit the local Chattanooga community and is particularly excited about working with the Family Justice Center.
